Basic Maintenance Provider Training Program in Texas

On-site wastewater treatment system maintenance providers in Texas were required by the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality to gain registration with the state by September 1, 2006. A training program was implemented consisting of fifteen hours contact time in the classroom and a one-hour exam. Participants were surveyed using a retrospective-post test to give a self assessment of knowledge gained with respect to various learning objectives. The survey questions and associated participant responses will be discussed during the presentation.
